

Create a basic react application with a single page, where you can call an api (You can use Faker.js or whatever suits you) and get list of items and can map those list of items on frontend. Also place a loader which will be visible while the API is fetching the data.