Have a go at creating a new webpage that displays a form with the fields in the image.

- Note that "fieldsets" are being used to group the form fields.
- Since we may not yet know how to process the information on a form, for the moment just use the form attribute action="mailto:my@emailaddy.com" to send yourself an email (modify with your own address).
- As always, ensure that your page validates!
- Once you have your form displaying, we'll take it one step further by adding some accessibility:
  - Identify all the labels for your fields using the <label> element.
  - Add access keys for your fields and test them!
